Table of Contents

03. | Mission & History
04. | A Letter from IRT
06. | 3B Season
13. | Events & Workshops
14. | IRT Productions
15. | After Residency
Tucked away in the old Archive Building in Greenwich Village NYC, IRT is a grassroots theater development laboratory providing space, support and community for independent artists.

History

Established in 1986 as Interborough Repertory Theater, IRT has a proud history of nurturing artistic freedom and career development for a wide-ranging community, providing over 200 first-time professional NYC creative jobs while producing over sixty-eight original scripts in forms ranging from staged readings to full off-Broadway productions.

In 2007, Kori Rushton was selected as the new Artistic Director. Under her leadership, ‘Interborough Repertory Theater’ has pared down its name to simply ‘IRT’ and adjusted its mission to move the company forward in a bold new direction. The new IRT has remained dedicated to its past by preserving and adapting its programs for the Deaf community, while shifting its primary focus to supporting the development of new theater projects (3B Series).

In 2009, Associate Artistic Director Ben Vershbow and Development Director Stacy Donovan joined the team and have helped transform IRT into an indispensable part of the downtown theater ecology, creating new possibilities in New York’s challenging arts and real estate environment.
Dear Friends,

The 2011-12 season was an interesting one for IRT. It was one of laying groundwork. It was one of quiet planning and it was one of happy accidents and continued challenges. It did have its milestones, though. It was one in which we were recognized by some of the city’s leading arts organizations by their decision to use public funds to advance our mission. It was one in which we inadvertently and fortuitously set up a future partnership to achieve our most ambitious programming to date and it was one in which we were able to further our mission of providing space and support to Deaf theater makers and audiences.

First, we can start with something that we’re very proud of and have worked extremely hard for. As I mentioned above, we were awarded with two publicly funded grants. This is obviously a huge deal for us. Someone decided that our 3B Development Series was worthy of your tax dollars! Both the New York City Department of Cultural Affairs and A.R.T/ New York’s Nancy Quinn Fund, honored us for the important work we do in support of New York City’s independent theatrical artists. We can’t thank both of these organizations enough along with the hard work and continued inspiration of our 3B artists.

We were also able to build on the success of last year’s fully realized and IRT produced presentation of Diana Amsterdam’s Carnival Round the Central Figure by following it up with three more fully realized productions of new work produced in partnership with, and presented in, IRT. This year, full productions included Lake Water by Troy Deutch produced by Neighborhood Productions, the “surreal vaudeville” of Lisa Fay and Jeff Glassman’s Depth of Moment: in four parts, and Rady&Bloom’s The Orange Person, which NYTheater.com’s Martin Denton said is “very much the kind of show Americans need these days to remind us who we are and what we value.”

We are also proud to report that several of our artists and shows were able to go on to larger venues and continued lives in other theaters. Namely, Erica Fae’s Take What Is Yours was able to premiere to the public for the New Ohio Theater’s inaugural show just downstairs from us in the Archive Building. It then went on for a critically and commercially successful run at 59E59 Theaters. The New York Times had this to say- “…(Erica Fae) and the technical wizardry around her have chillingly — and importantly — put the suffering back in suffrage.” We were honored to play our part.

This actually was just the beginning of IRT residents who went on to produce work at the New Ohio Theater. Human Animals, Collaboration Town and Rady&Bloom all went on to present fully realized productions there.
A LETTER FROM IRT

Which got us thinking. Maybe there’s a way to formalize the natural relationship developing between IRT and The New Ohio? There’s an exciting relationship now developing that we’ll have to wait until next year to announce. But it’s big... and awesome.

Another area of steady progress for us this season has been the continued evolution of our TYA (Theater for Young Audiences) programming. In the past, IRT was involved in the development and performance of shows that played to a wide range of New York City school children, which is a fantastic way to expose and inspire children and young adults to appreciate and, hopefully, practice the art of theater. But we wondered — using the resources that we have — namely our resident artists — how can we instill in the younger generation a true hunger for not just the appreciation of art but the basic creative act that is theater and story telling?

This year, we spent time developing what we hope will become a cornerstone of what we do here at IRT — The Westside Experiment School Young Actor’s Laboratory. Starting summer 2012, we are taking young adults aged 13-18 and pairing them for several weeks with one of our resident companies to learn the building blocks of collective theatrical creation. We want to teach the next generation ways to create by giving them exposure to the professional working companies devising their work at IRT. We can’t wait to share this newest element of IRT with the world. Stay tuned.

And finally, we were able to continue our mission to support Deaf artists and audiences through our 3B Development Series. In April, we were proud to present a workshop presentation of The Representatives’ Ramona Clay, directed by IRT’s Ben Vershbow and frequent IRT collaborator Dorit Avganim, and starring Alexandria Wailes as one of two long estranged sisters reuniting as the man who murdered their parents is set to stand trial.

We were also proud to host a English/Hebrew/ASL Seder for the members of RIT/NTID’s Masquers Drama Club during their 3B development of Dangerous Signs, directed by Luane Davis Haggerty, a powerful fusion of physical theater, ASL, dance and spoken word.

All in all, a great year with big things to look forward to in the future. We can’t thank our artists and audiences enough and hope you continue to support and sustain us as we support and sustain independent theater in NYC.

Kori Rushton
Artistic Director, IRT Theater
Morgan Rowe/Jean-Michelle Gregory
Part of the Fiasco
October 31 - November 4, 2011

Part of the Fiasco is the working title of a new solo piece by Morgan Rowe, directed by Jean-Michele Gregory, a true story about India, love, chaos, death—and the courage it takes to embrace them all. Their one-week residency at IRT is the duo’s first steps towards collaboration, and they’ll be using the time to open as many narrative doors as possible in order to find the underlying story that must be told.

Jordan Seavey/Collaboration Town
The Funny Pain
Directed by May Adrales
October 26-31, 2010

They don’t call Mary Rochelle Douleur “Roach” for nothing — she’s practically indestructible. With a disease that makes her unable to feel physical pain, Roach can fall down stairs, stick her fingers in electrical sockets, or scratch her eyeballs and still look up with a smile. But when she and her older sister Mary May become rival stand-up comediennes, they learn just how fine the line is between laughing and crying.

Rady&Bloom
The Girl of the Golden West
May 14 – 27, 2012

Rady&Bloom and IRT presented their newest full production The Orange Person: a devised tale of an imaginary south Texan desert town with songwriter Laura Dunn, a host of diverse vocalists, and featuring instrumentation by composers Joe White and Ellen O’Meara.

The Orange Person
At last, the story of THE ORANGE PERSON, told from the perspective of the people who actually experienced it – a celebration of existence, of difference, and of song. From within both sides of a duplex in Terlingua, a rural town in the south Texan desert, a family confronts a medical marvel: an orange baby is born.
“Very much the kind of show (The Orange Person) Americans need these days to remind us who we are and what we value.”

— NYTheater.com’s Martin Denton

Zach Fine / The Room
Walled In
Written and performed by Zack Fine
Directed by Diana Buirski
May 14 – 27, 2012

What really happened inside Henry David Thoreau’s cabin at Walden Pond? Wonder no more! Self-proclaimed Thoreau scholar, Charles Rucklemore III, will show you the exact truth – or something really, really close to it. Part fantasy, part mythology, part clown-show, and all inspired by Thoreau’s Walden, WALLED IN is the story of one man’s determination to live the life he has imagined.
Overtur Theater Ensemble
The Romancers & Another Kind of Love
March 5 - April 1, 2012

Another Kind of Love
by Crystal Skillman
Directed by Gaye Taylor Upchurch

When Kit Singer returns to her disheveled family home to hash out an opportunity to return to the rock scene with her sisters, she finds a family in chaos and a niece on the verge of losing herself to their destructive legacy. Crystal Skillman brings this disturbing, darkly funny new full length to audiences for the first time in this OTE Spring Workshop Residency.

The Romancers
Music by Kathryn Hathaway
Book & Lyrics by Sarah Hammond
Under the Music Direction of Ian Axness

Before Percy, before love, before Frankenstein, before she was Mary Shelley, young Mary spent her afternoons writing and dreaming at her mother’s grave by the Fleet River in a northern suburb of London. This work-in-progress will cover ten years of Mary’s life. At OTE, Sarah Hammond & Kathryn Hathaway will work on pieces from this new musical, which imagines Mary’s early teen years and guesses at her first inspirations for Frankenstein.

The Deconstructive Theater Project
The Orpheus Variations
Conceived & Directed by Adam J. Thompson
January 23 - February 5, 2012

The Orpheus Variations re-imagines the classic myth of Orpheus and Eurydice in the Underworld as the tale of a transcendent sound-maker struck mute by the suicide of his lover. In a desperate attempt to reconstruct the decaying past, the sound-maker obsessively fills thousands of glass jars with single objects – keepsakes – each endowed with a singular memory of his beloved. The Orpheus Variations is a cinema/theatre hybrid that de-constructs the classic myth from the inside out by colliding the grand narratives of Greek tragedy with the private internal narratives of modernist literature, poetry, and film.

The Deconstructive Theatre Project is a Brooklyn-based not-for-profit ensemble performance laboratory that exists to devise and premiere new multidisciplinary work. The company is dedicated to producing performances that experiment with the relationships between theatrical vocabularies, content, and form and to providing broad community access to its process and productions.
Mashinka Firunts / Daniel Scott Snelson
Semiospectacle Nº 2
November 13-20, 2011

A verbal varieté strategizing the aesthetics of discourse, Semiospectacle stages sites of exceptional linguistic exchange. The poet’s theater becomes an academic lecture hall fronting as vaudeville house. Its players dispense with disciplinary demarcations, highlighting language-based practices across scholarship, poetics, digital cinema, and visual art performance. Co-curated by Mashinka Firunts and Danny Snelson.

James Hoff reads from the Argot Dictionary, a compendium of new colloquialisms and revised anachronisms.

Alejandro Crawford performs a player piano installment of his video organ, the vonome, mixing digital aesthetics with the history of spectacular mechanics.

Yelena Gluzman demonstrates her School for Salomés, performed by Amy Huggans, Danusia Roberts Trevino, Cecilia Lynn-Jacobs, Olivia Jorgensen, and Jeffrey Joe Nelson.

Danny Snelson presents an ongoing cinema lecture “The Dark Cloud of Dr. Mabuse,” exploring haunted technology and criminal dispersion alongside Fritz Lang’s 1922 film Dr. Mabuse Der Spieler.
Mashinka Firunts delivers micro-lectures on tactics of theatricalized linguistic exchange.

Vaginal Davis’s screening of Hippo Narcissus, a cantata wherein Davis portrays Theodor Adorno’s mother channeling 1930s opera diva Grace Moore. Intertitular tap by Gin Minsky of the Minsky Sisters.

Improbable Stage Company

Shrewd

November 13-20, 2011

Shrewd: astute; keen; artful; clever, resourceful. Shrewd: tricky; cunning; malicious; piercing; sharp; sagacious; underhanded, calculating. And what of the word’s origin? Shrewd is derived from the word Shrewe, which means “wicked man.” Wicked man? Then what are we to make of that famous Shrew offered us by Mr. Shakespeare? All will be revealed in the Improbable Stage Company’s astute, tricky, clever, calculating, resourceful, cunning, keen, piercing, artful new comedy Shrewd.

The Improbable Stage Company is a not-for-profit, multigenerational repertory company based in New York City that is focused creating original movement work and developing unique adaptations of classics. They are steadfast in their mission to create intriguing theatrical work, to support and nurture the theatre community, and to inspire and educate future generations of theatre artists.
3B SERIES

Ramona Clay
A New Play

by Stan Richardson

Characters
Ramona, female, 22 (deaf)
Tonya, female, 34
George, male, 25
Tug, male, 29

Time & Place
I: June ....................................... Grumman University (G.U.) & a bus to NYC
II: next night ............................... Trader Joe’s & Ramona’s apartment
III: one night later ......................... Belmont Lounge & Ramona’s apartment

The Representatives
Ramona Clay
Written by Stan Richardson
Directed by Dorit Avganim & Ben Vershbow
April 13-15, 2012

Set against the backdrop of the New York Off-Off-Broadway scene, Ramona Clay begins with the reunion of two estranged sisters—twelve years apart (the younger, Ramona, is Deaf)—as the man who murdered their parents is set to be executed. It’s also funny.

NTID Masquers Drama Club
Dangerous Signs
Directed by Luane Davis Haggerty
April 5-7, 2012

A powerful fusion of physical theater, American Sign Language (ASL), music and spoken word poetry accessible to both hearing and Deaf audiences. The performance concludes with an audience participation ASL poetic workshop.
The Hamlet Collective
Hamlet
July 13 - August 7, 2011
When Kit Singer returns to her disheveled
The Hamlet Collective rewire (and reorders)
Shakespeare’s tragedy.

Lisa Kohn / Jessica Bauman
Die Fascist Capitalist Pigs! Die!
September 6-10, 2011
A reading of a dark and funny new play about extremism gone horribly wrong.

Jessica Lewis
A Map of the Ocean’s Floor
November 28 - December 4, 2011
An exploration of the end of the Beat Generation in music, theater, spoken word and movement.

Vagabond Inventions
For the Sins I Can Remember
December 19, 2011
A new movement-theater piece exploring the humanity of the ordinary women of the American Victorian Era who turned to prostitution as a means of survival.

Eric John Meyer / Hondo Weiss-Richmond
The Scavengers
December 19, 2011
This new play by Eric John Meyer tells the story of two brothers who try to escape from the world, but cannot escape each other.

LabRats
Experiment Sessions Vol IV
January 2-22, 2012
A free marathon of uncensored work in multidisciplinary forms; readings of plays, fiction/ non-fiction, poetry, live music,
movement, dance, ensemble creations and a preview of upcoming plays in rep.
Slightly Altered States Theater Company
The Thing About Dan
February 6-19, 2012
Paul and Zip are waiting for Dan, the friend who keeps their lives running smoothly. The thing is, he’s sleeping with their wives.

Lucille Scott
The Naked Side of Grace: The Final Concert of Grace Fullest and Violet Tendencies
February 20 - March 4, 2012
Two burlesque artists: Grace Fullest, who has a penchant for pontificating about Madonna and cultural decline and her girlfriend Violet Tendencies, who hopes to inspire everyone to leave a trail of glitter wherever they go.

Mark Siano and Opal Peachey
Modern Luv
April 19-21, 2012
The show is a hilarious parody of life and love in the digital age, where texting, emailing, facebooking, and “liking” have replaced true romance.

F*It Club
The Spring Fling: My Best/Worst Date Ever
April 26 - May 13, 2012
The smash-hit, New York Innovative Theatre-nominated collection of world-premiere plays returns to IRT with a fresh new selection!
Lake Water

By Troy Deutsch
Directed by Daniel Talbott
September 12 - October 2, 2011

Lake Water follows two small town high school seniors, Iris and James, who become estranged after their best friend suddenly commits suicide. Then one “crapping pathetic Friday night,” James calls Iris in distress, and she meets him at the lake. Out on a dock, surrounded by green water, the two friends untangle the painful events of their past and struggle to face the limits of their lives. Full of humor and hope, Lake Water sheds some light on an all-too-common small-town American tragedy.

Lisa Fay and Jeff Glassman Duo

Depth of a Moment: in four parts
December 5-18, 2011

Virtuoso deconstructors of everyday life Lisa Fay and Jeff Glassman return to IRT… “surreal vaudeville”…”I think that Lisa Fay and Jeff Glassman belong in some kind of genius category. One is reminded of silent film comedians and European circus clowns, who hone their material to its essence.”
— David Cuthbert, Theatre Critic, New Orleans Times-Picayune

“There’s something hauntingly effective about Lake Water… The 75-minute piece, which features two strong performances from Deutsch and Samantha Soule, seems ripped from the headlines and yet never comes across as a message play… after our short visit with these characters is complete, there is no denying that the time is well served.”
— Hollywood Soap Box

Photo by Hunter Canning
AFTER RESIDENCY

Where shows went after residency at IRT:

Take What is Yours
Erica Fae
- The New Ohio
- 59E59 Theaters
  Read the Review - http://nyti.ms/V8wnKe

The Girl of the Golden West
Rady&Bloom
- The New Ohio

“(Erica Fae) and the technical wizardry around her have chillingly — and importantly — put the suffering back in suffrage.”

— The New York Times - Catherine Rampell